

Frequently Asked Questions

1. How long is my digital badge valid?

Digital badges are typically valid for the year in which you earn them, but specific expiration dates vary. Check the badge on Credly for specific expiration dates.

2. How do I avoid badge expiration?

You keep your badge current by taking the recertification exam when it's released and before the badge expiration date. Visit training.apple.com and log in to the Apple Certification Records System (ACRS) periodically to ensure that you're aware as soon as a recertification exam is available.

3. What do I do if my badge expires?

The recertification exam for badge holders contains the same questions as the new exam for those who haven't earned a badge. So, if you miss taking the recertification exam before your badge expires, you can simply take the new exam. After you pass the exam, the status of your existing digital badge is updated.

4. What languages are Apple Certification exams offered in?

All certification exams are available in English.

5. How much time do I have to complete the exam?

Apple Certification exams take about two hours to complete. The exam preparation guide for each exam indicates the specific time allotted for each exam.

6. Are accommodations available under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA)?

If you'd like to take an exam and require additional time, Apple accommodates students under the ADA or local applicable law. To learn how to submit your accommodation request in the exam application, refer to the instructions in the Apple Certification Policies.

7. How much do certification exams cost?

Prices are subject to change at the sole discretion of Apple. Apple Certification exams are offered online and cost $149 USD. Apple recertification exams for unexpired certifications cost $49 USD. Additional taxes may apply in certain countries and regions.

8. I have taken this exam multiple times and received the same score every time. Does this indicate an error in the results computation?

No, it's common for candidates to earn similar or identical scores on multiple attempts at an exam.

9. How many questions are on the exam?

Apple Certification exams have about 100 questions. The exam preparation guide for each exam indicates the specific number of questions for each exam.

10. How and when do I get my exam results?

You receive your score by email immediately after you complete your exam. Your results are typically posted in your ACRS account within three business days of taking an exam.
